

GADGET

RADIO STAR

Travellers whose self-drive holidays instantly became less stressful with the emergence of GPS will love the next iteration of the technology: Tourism Radio.

New Zealand's car and campervan rental companies have already embraced this in-vehicle "virtual tour guide", which broadcasts in real time, pointing out key attractions and prominent landmarks relative to the location of the listener. Hayden Braddock, Tourism Radio managing director New Zealand and Australia, says the station comes complete with Kiwi slang for an authentic listening experience. – SUE WHITE

